SPIKING THE GUNS.

"The regiment will be annihilated," observed the adjutant coolly. And then, in the same immovable tones, he asked some one to pass him a biscuit.

"Curse you," shouted the colonel, "do you think I don't know that? Do you imagine I fear getting killed tomorrow? Do you suppose I want to live on after what has happened? It's the eternal disgrace of the thing that's cutting me."

"Once comfortably shot," remarked the senior major in easy philosophy, "it doesn't much matter to me personally where or for what I go down. Not a soul will be left behind to care."

This last remark added tinder to the blaze. The major was a peasant's son, who had hacked and thrust his way up from the ranks by sheer hard fighting. His commanding officer was a noble of the old regime. He had hoped and reasonably expected that the previous day's engagement would give him a brigade, and so the fiasco had fallen all the more bitterly.

It seemed as though the very stars in their courses had been battling against us. Everything had gone wrong. The blame was not ours. But this in an army where want of luck was the greatest crime, told nothing in our favor. Many men had fallen, and panic had seized the heels of the rest. Which of us initiated the run cannot be said, but in the rush of some all had been carried along, few, except perhaps one or two of the older officers, resisting very strenuously. The colonel, burning with shame, had gone to report. What precisely had been said? That we did not know, but we guessed with some accuracy, although he did not repeat the details. The gist of his interview was that the regiment was to attack again on the morrow, and if unsuccessful then once more on the day after, and so on till the bridge was taken.

Yesterday the thing had been barely possible. Yet today it was far different. During the night the defenses had been more than trebled. The Austrians swarmed. Enough artillery was mounted there now to have demolished an entire army corps advancing against it from the open.

The deduction was clear. The bravest men will turn tail sometimes, and in our army, which was the bravest in the world, there had during the latter part of the campaign been more than one case of wavering. An example accordingly was to be made. Our corps had been singled out for the condign punishment. We were doomed to march on the morrow to our annihilation.

Of course the matter had not been put so at headquarters. There the words ran: "Most important strategic point. Must be taken at whatever cost. Your regiment will again have the honor, colonel," and so on. But, summed up bluntly, it was neither more nor less than I have said. We all understood the order of the letter, and there was not a man in the regiment who would hesitate a moment in carrying out his share. Each private soldier, each officer would march with firm determination to march then his last. That gives the case in a nutshell.

But the secure knowledge that there would be no skulkers along this road to execution did not pacify the colonel. If anything, it increased his bitterness. It would make his ungrateful memory last the longer. He sat at the table end of that inn room where we had messed, with folded arms and nervous fingers kneading at his muscles. By singular irony we were lodged in comfort there, we, who had got to go out and die on the morrow—and he must needs taunt us with it, as though it were a shame for such as we to have so tolerable a billet.

Myself, I was stretched out on a sofa away by the far wall, and lay there mutely, having but little taste for the wordy savageries which were being so freely dealt about. And the night grew older without my being disturbed. But the angry man at the end of the table singled me out at last, perhaps because my outward calm and listlessness jarred upon him.

"Tired, Eugene?" he asked.
 "A little, sir."
 "Ah, I can understand it. I noted your activity today. You have mistaken your vocation, mon cher. You should not have come into the army. You should have been a professional runner."

But I kept it there, gave a shrug and said nothing. What use could further wrangling be? But the silence was an ill move. It only angered him further, and he threw at me an insult which was more than human man could endure.

"Do you think you will again feel inclined to use those powers of yours tomorrow, Eugene? Or had I better have you handcuffed to some steady old soldier?"

A dozen of the other officers sprang to their feet at this ghastly taunt, for when Eastern papers announce that the tariff question will be the issue in the Congressional and State elections next year. The President, it is stated, has so decreed and his will is law not only with Democrats but with the Republican leaders also. The fact that the Presidential campaign of 1892 was fought on the tariff east of the Rocky Mountains, and that the issue was ignored in the special session of Congress, is to be overlooked and the attention of the people is to be diverted from the financial question by keeping it out of sight and putting the tariff conspicuously in the foreground.

The goldbug scheme is for both wings of the Wall Street combine to commence a sham fight as soon as Congress convenes. The question of schedules is to be discussed and appeals made to the people to sustain protection or tariff reform at the polls. Every goldbug paper in the country, whether it calls itself Republican or Democratic, is to devote its columns to the advocacy of one or the other of these theories and utterly ignore the silver question.

Will the people of the West and South, whose industries are paralyzed by the scarcity of money, permit themselves to be again deceived by the tariff tinkers? Will the miners, thrown out of employment by the demonization of silver, and the farmers, who are running in debt raising wheat at less than a cent a pound because of the contraction of the currency, fight the battle of 1892 over again because Wall Street decrees that they shall do so?

The main issues before the people now, as in 1892, is, Shall one-half the money of the Constitution be demonetized in the interest of the gold ring of the Eastern States and Europe? Shall silver coinage be suspended, the currency contracted, the National debt increased by the issuance of more bonds without increasing the circulating medium a dollar, in the interest of the creditor class?

The people should not be led away from those questions by the clamor of the goldbug press and speakers. A special session of Congress has been held since the fight over tariff schedules in 1892 and the subject of tariff revision was scarcely alluded to. No change has been made in tariff legislation since the passage of the McKinley act, and none is likely to be made for many months to come, consequently tariff legislation cannot be the cause of the business depression, though it is asserted that fears of a financial stringency. A similar cry was raised about the Bullion Purchase act and the gold men proclaimed that its repeal was necessary to restore confidence, and that expunging it from the Statutes would result in business prosperity. The act was repealed and the people discover that contracting the currency and stopping the coinage of silver does not relieve the money stringency and from present indications the next political battle at the polls will not be over tariff schedules, but for the complete restoration of silver to its former standard.

THE RAILROAD DEBTS.

Congressman Geary of California is preparing a bill to provide for the foreclosure of the Government mortgages on the Pacific railroads. To obviate the necessity of appropriating a large sum of money for paying the first mortgages on the roads, he proposes to issue bonds and create a sinking fund, based on two per cent. of the net earnings of the roads, for the redemption of the bonds.

The Union Pacific and Central Pacific railroads owe first and second mortgage bonds. The first mortgage bonds are held by private individuals and the second mortgage bonds are held by the Government to secure its loans. To foreclose these liens it must redeem the first mortgage bonds, and this will necessitate a heavy outlay. If bonds are issued, as proposed, the money will not have to be taken direct from the treasury. It is believed, however, that the companies will make an effort to prevent the roads from going into the hands of the Government and that the time for the payment of the debts will be extended.

Government ownership of railroads would be a new thing in the United States. The experiment has never been tried in this country. It would increase the number of Federal officials and give the party in power great advantages in elections, as every officer and every employee would support the party that gave them positions, as custom house and postoffice officials and employees do everywhere. The country will get along just as well, in fact, it would not differ if the Government was not represented at any foreign court, and it would save a large amount of money now paid in salaries.

J. J. VAN ALLEN, who, it was said, paid $50,000 for the position of Minister to Italy, cannot be found. He was nominated by the President, confirmed by the Senate, and his commission has been signed and is lying in the State Department subject to his order. No one in the Government offices knows where he is and it is thought he will not accept the place. It will not make the least difference to the people of the United States whether Mr. Van Allen or anybody else goes to Italy as United States Minister. The country will get along just as well, in fact, it would not differ if the Government was not represented at any foreign court, and it would save a large amount of money now paid in salaries.

HOKE SMITH TO RESIGN.

His Pension Policy not Approved by the President.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The Tariff and Financial Questions Giving him Much Trouble.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Its Preparation Said to be a Tedious Task.

WASHINGTON, November 22.—President's Cleveland's message is said to be in a backward state. This is because the affairs of which it treats are backward.

His recommendations in regard to tariff legislation cannot be well framed until it is settled how far the Democrats on the Ways and Means Committee will commit the party. If they insist on an income tax Cleveland's Eastern supporters, who are mostly rich men, would like to have something in the message discouraging that idea.

They also want an indication from the White House of conservative action on the tariff.

As to the finances there is so much confusion that probably the President himself will not determine what recommendations to make until the last moment. It looks as though he would have to come out squarely in favor of bonds to strengthen the Treasury. Carlisle's promise that conditions would improve as soon as the Sherman law was repealed has not been kept. The reserve has crept up very slowly, while the net cash balance has gone down. Under these circumstances there seems no other way of meeting this year's deficit and protecting the public credit except through a bond issue.

As to silver, the President probably will make no positive statement, but will declare his confident belief that with a little more time the good effects of the stoppage of silver purchase will be seen. He may explain why it is not desirable for the United States to take the initiative in calling together the international monetary conference. Signs of renewed activity on the part of the free coinage men have caused some of the Southern Democrats to insist that the President, in order to head it off, shall reiterate the declaration of the Democratic National Convention and recommend a repeal of the State bank tax.

There was an understanding that if the Southern members supported silver repeal the Administration would use its influence to secure the repeal of the State Bank tax. But with the existing financial uncertainty the President will be likely to hesitate about causing further uncertainty by recommending wildcat legislation, and what he has to say on the subject of State banks is apt to be very guarded.

HE WILL RESIGN.

Secretary Hoke Smith and the President Cannot Agree.

WASHINGTON, November 22.—Since Secretary Smith's return from Georgia, whence he was called by the illness of his son, it is learned that his visit to his home may lead to an early retirement from the Cabinet.

It is stated on the best of authority that at a recent Cabinet meeting President Cleveland spoke in very plain terms to Smith in regard to his pension policy. He stated that the course now being pursued by the Interior Department had caused the Administration more trouble, especially in the Western States, than any other action. He asked Smith to define his policy in plain terms and to do it very soon.

A few days after this conversation Smith left suddenly for Georgia, and it is known from statements made by the Secretary that he has had a tempting offer from a railroad corporation to take charge of the law department. There is one hitch in the negotiations which would have been settled no doubt this week had not Smith been recalled to Washington, but that his retirement from the Cabinet will follow is considered an assured fact.

In connection with the disagreement of the President and Secretary Smith over the pension policy it is a well-known fact that the Georgia statesman is not at all pleased with the Administration's course in the Hawaiian case. Smith has taken issue with the President on this important matter upon several occasions, and according to a close personal friend of his he believes the greatest blunder that could have been made is the action taken by the Administration in the Hawaiian imbroglio.

Powderly Sustained.

PHILADELPHIA, November 22.—The Financial Committee of the Knights of Labor has reported. The General Executive Committee is exonerated, and the Order finds itself in a fair financial condition. The report fully sustains General Master Powderly and the Executive Board in the manner the strikers' fund was disposed of. It is unofficially announced that all grand officers will be declared vacant and a new election called for the purpose of ousting the Hayes faction.

A Homeless Wanderer.

NEW YORK, November 22.—Ellen Cummings, who years ago was a popular actress and supported Booth, Barrett and other sterling actors, was a prisoner in the Jefferson Market Police Court to-day, charged with the larceny of a diamond pin valued at $50. Drink has been responsible for her fall, and for the past year she has been almost a homeless wanderer, living on the charity of former friends who knew her in better days.

Boy Murderer Sentenced.

SALT LAKE CITY, November 22.—Harry Hammond, who was recently convicted of murdering six-year-old Clyde Robinson, was to-day sentenced in the District Court to fifteen years in the Government reform school at Washington, D. C. Young Hammond is seven years old. He shot the Robinson child off the limb of a tree with a double-barrel shotgun.

For Scrofula

"After suffering for about twenty-five years from scrofulous sores on the legs and arms, trying various medical courses without benefit, I began to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and a wonderful cure was the result. Five bottles sufficed to restore me to health."—Bonifacio Lopez, 327 E. Commerce St., San Antonio, Texas.

Catarrh

"My daughter was afflicted for nearly a year with catarrh. The physician being unable to help her, my pastor recommended Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I followed his advice. Three months of regular treatment with Ayer's Sarsaparilla and Ayer's Pills completely restored my daughter's health."—Mrs. Louise Riehl, Little Canada, Ware, Mass.

Rheumatism

"For several years, I was troubled with inflammatory rheumatism, being bad at times as to be entirely helpless. For the last two years, whenever I felt the effects of the disease, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and have not had a spell since."—E. T. Hansbrough, Elk Run, Va.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

THE COTTONWOOD NICKEL MINES.

The Man Who Claims to Have Discovered Them.

"Have you read that dispatch in the Call this morning about the rich nickel mine in Nevada?" said Robert Trewin, steward at the Receiving Hospital, to a Call reporter yesterday.

"You will no doubt be surprised when I tell you," he continued, "that I was the first one to discover that mine, and if it had not been for a disappointment in an affair of the heart I would have held on to it and been a rich miner to-day."

"I first went to that section of the country in April, 1861, and assisted in laying out Humboldt City, which I made my residence, and also the town of Unionville."

"In 1862 I was doing a little prospecting in the locality where the mine is situated. I was the only white man there at the time, and I camped for five days with the Indians waiting for a fellow prospector, whom I afterward learned got lost in the mountains and perished in the snow."

"Looking at it from the sink of Carson, thirty miles away, it can be seen distinctly running across the mountain two miles from the lowest point of the croppings. The whole width of the ledge is a solid body of ore."

"I was puzzled to make out the character of the ore, and gathered together a little and put it in a flour-sack."

"Then I started for Humboldt City, which was booming at the time, and my discovery caused the greatest excitement. I was advised to take the ore to Virginia City. I went there and consulted with Dr. May, now of this city, but who was then agent for the Pacific University."

"He advised me to get the ore assayed, but the assayers apparently did not know that such a thing as nickel was in existence, as they reported that the ore was nothing but iron."

"I was not satisfied with their opinion and made another visit to the mine in 1863 and did a little work on it. During that trip I lost one of my horses, and had to leave my wagon behind till I got another horse."

"I did nothing further in regard to the mine till 1868. I was then in San Jose, and the railroad through Nevada was then being built. Some capitalists in San Jose made an offer to me to go to the locality of the mine and relocate all the mines that were worth working and they would give me an equal interest in the products of the mines."

"I went there, but found all the other mines had been secured by another company from San Jose, with the exception of the great nickel mine. I put up a notice on the mine claiming it and intending to have it recorded in due course."

"I stayed there for a few weeks awaiting important letters, but none came and I got very uneasy. Finally, I made up my mind that I could not stand the suspense any longer, so I decided to make my way to Humboldt City and find out why none had come."

"On the trip across the desert I nearly died from thirst, but providentially reached a spring while I was in a delirious state. I can assure you I had a terrible experience that trip, and never thought I would reach Humboldt City."

"When I got there I received letters which put all thoughts of the mine forever out of my head."

"The mine was afterward located by Lovelocks, after which the town of Lovelocks is named, and he sold it to the English syndicate which has now possession of it."

"I think if a town is laid out near the mines one of the streets should be called 'Trewin street, in view of the fact that I was the first one that discovered the mine. Don't you think so?'—S. F. Call.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

An Old Resident of Eureka Run Over by a Wagon.

Last Tuesday Hugh Macnamara left Tariff's ranch in Eureka county, for his home at Halleck, Elko county. He was accompanied by his eldest son, on horseback, while the father drove the team. The morning was chilly, and Mr. Macnamara's feet becoming cold, he got out of the wagon and ran along side of it for the purpose of getting them warm, and while doing so his son rode up on a gallop and started the team to running, when Mr. Macnamara ran up to the wagon for the purpose of getting hold of the reins, and was struck by one of the front wheels of the wagon and knocked down, the wagon running over him and breaking his right leg and otherwise bruising him badly. He survived his injuries until 9 o'clock the next morning when death relieved him of his suffering.

As soon as the news reached here a team was sent out to bring him to town for surgical treatment, but when the team arrived at the scene of the accident it was found that Mr. Macnamara had been dead for several hours. He leaves a wife, three sons and a daughter to mourn his loss. His remains were brought to this place on Wednesday and interred yesterday.—Eureka Sentinel.

WHY HE GOT LEFT.

He Was Studying to be a Preacher And Couldn't Tell a Lie.

Our trunks had been turned with the car, and when we got to Cincinnati an official of the railroad company desired each one of us to give him our statement of loss, says a writer in the Troy Budget. A tall and solemn looking young man came to me as I was figuring away and wanted to know what sum I was going to name.

"Well, I think my loss is at least $60," I replied.

"Was your trunk burned, too?"

"Got your loss figured up?"

"Not yet, I wanted to ask you about it. Can I talk to you in confidence?"

"Oh, yes?"

"Well, I don't suppose my things were actually worth over $12, but—"

"But you'd like to get $60?"

"That's it, exactly. The railroad folks seem willing to pay anything that is asked."

"Well, then, why not make it $50?"

"Wouldn't it be cheating?"

"That's a matter you must settle with your own conscience."

"Yes, I know it is, and god darn my buttons if I don't hope that some body will kick me all over this town."

"Why, what's the matter?"

"Matter! Why, instead of being ready to scoop the railroad out of $40 or $50, I've got to take $10 or $12! I've been studying to be a preacher for the last six months, and blast my old hat if I don't tell 'em a lie. I'm never fixed to hit anything good that comes along."

THE ARCADE SALOON ROBBED.

Sixty-five Dollars in Cash and Several Articles Stolen.

Yesterday morning Sam Paige, bartender at the Arcade saloon, went as usual to the saloon to open up for business. He found John Jago, a runner for the Arcade hotel, in the saloon. Soon afterwards, having occasion to make change, he found only a few nickels in the drawer where there is usually thirty or forty dollars. Upon the arrival of S. Armarko, proprietor of the saloon, Paige learned that he had left money in the cash register and in the drawer amounting to $65, which sum, together with a watch, two scarf pins, a pistol and a valuable shot gun were stolen. Upon complaint of Mr. Armarko, Jago was arrested and taken before Justice Linn, who released him upon his own recognizance to await examination.

Jago says he saw a lot of tramps in the saloon early in the morning, and he entered the place through the door which had been left open by the hobos.

ANOTHER EL DORADO.

Rich Gold Mines Discovered in Lincoln County.

The Record says Pioche is on the eve of another stampede equal to that which occurred when news of gold discoveries at Ferguson district were first reported. This time the scene of difficulty is laid four miles west of the ranch of Robert Logan, in the Muddy, and about 130 miles from here. Reports of almost fabulously rich finds reached town last Friday and quite a number of our townsmen have left for the new diggings. It is called the Riley district, from the fact that a prospector by that name has been working there for some time. The surface there is a hard gravel cement, gold quartz being found below the cement, which differs in places in thickness. High assays are reported, and a rush from Southern Utah and Northern Arizona has already set in.

Killed by a Train.

Particulars of the killing of Hiram A. Harford by a passenger train at Desert station, on the C. P. R. R. last Sunday night are received. He was a veteran fireman and had been East on an excursion with the California Veterans. He had a first-class ticket from Ogden to San Francisco. It appears that he came west on the train as far as Wadsworth and started back East afoot. The first intimation the train men had of the killing was at Hot Springs, where they found a cap and noticed blood spots on the pilot of the engine. He acted strangely on his way west and thought he was going in the wrong direction. He has a son residing in San Francisco.

For Throat and Lungs

Hemorrhage
Five Years.

"I have been ill for about five years, have had the best medical advice, and I took the first dose in some doubt. This resulted in a few hours sleep. There was no further hemorrhage till next day, when I had a slight attack which stopped almost immediately. By the third day all trace of blood had disappeared and I had recovered much strength. The fourth day I sat up in bed and ate my dinner, the first solid food for two months. Since that time I have gradually gotten better and am now able to move about the house. My death was daily expected and my recovery has been a great surprise to my friends and the doctor. There can be no doubt about the effect of German Syrup, as I had an attack just previous to its use. The only relief was after the first dose." J. R. LOUGHRAN, Adelaide, Australia.

AN OCEAN TRAGEDY.

THE TERRIBLE FATE WHICH BEFELL THE CENTRAL AMERICA.

A Contest Between Angry Waters and a Bucket Line, in Which the Latter Lost A Cowardly Engineer—A Bird Guided the Ellen to the Rescue.

And who that remembers can hear without a thrill the name of the steamship Central America, which sank in a great storm on Sept. 12, 1857, with most of her officers and crew, nearly 400 passengers and $1,500,000 in gold?
The Central America was crowded with treasure laden people from California on their way to New York. After leaving Havana on Sept. 8 she ran into a storm. The steamer began to leak, and Captain Herndon called upon the passengers to form lines and pass the buckets. Hour after hour the tempest howled, and the huge vessel groaned as the immense seas broke against her. Hour after hour the men with the buckets toiled for their lives; slowly the water gained on them.

The officers exhorted the bucket gangs not to pause for a moment if the ship was to be saved. The wind roared and the storm increased in fury. Every passenger stuck to his post and worked until he fell to the deck exhausted. Then the women offered to take the places of their wornout, fainting husbands and brothers, but none of the men would allow it. As the horror of the situation gradually dawned on the minds of the women and children the air was filled with sounds of terror, but above the raging hurricane and the cries of lamentation rose the chorus of the bucket men:

Heave, oh! heave, oh! stamp and go.

We'll be jolly blather, oh!

All day long they sang this song and fought for life against the steadily rising water.

Mrs. Easton, a bride on her honeymoon trip, passed bottles of wine to the heroic men to strengthen them in their desperate work. All night long the struggle was continued, and still the ocean gained inch by inch. The women begged, with tears in their eyes, to be allowed to help. They cheered the brave fellows and wept when they saw them fall to the deck with white faces and trembling limbs.

During the next day the peril of the steamer was increased by the lack of food and water. The hurricane tossed her sinking hull about and shattered her spars and masts. While the tired and sleepless men stuck to the buckets the women knelt and prayed to God for assistance.

About 2 o'clock in the afternoon a sail was seen to windward. Guns were fired and signals of distress hoisted. The strange vessel, which turned out to be the brig Marine of Boston, answered the signals and tried to approach, but the gale blew her about three miles away.

Then the boats were made ready, and the women and children prepared themselves. They had to strip off nearly all of their clothes and put on life preservers. Many of the women had gold, which they could not carry with them. Two of them went to their state-rooms and took out bags of $50 gold pieces, which they threw down in the cabin, inviting the others to take what they pleased. The money rolled and jingled about on the floor, while the two weeping women explained that they were returning home to enjoy the fortune which they had made in California, and that they would be beggars if the ship was lost. None of the women dared to take more than two pieces of gold lest it might weigh them down.

The men still remained at their work, saying that they would remain on board until another ship arrived, as the Marine could not take all the passengers, and the women and children must be saved first. Among those heroes was Billy Birch, the famous minstrel.

Two of the lifeboats were smashed by the sea, but three boats were filled with women and children, many of the latter being infants. The last boat to leave carried the chief engineer. He solemnly promised the captain to return, but the moment he got into the boat he drew a knife and threatened to kill any one who followed him. Later on, when the women and children were put on board the Marine, the chief engineer, like the coward and liar he was, refused to return.

Now the ship's command was so low in the ocean that almost every wave swept her back. Some of the passengers got into the rigging, while others tried to build a raft. Night came on. The storm continued to rage. The ship quivered and careened. Rockets soared up into the bellowing, angry heavens. Slowly the vessel filled with water, and the doomed host clinging to her deck and rigging prepared for death. There was no weeping and no shrieking, no wringing of hands. The captain stood at the wheel to the last.

All at once the ship, as if in an agony of death herself, made a plunge at an angle of 45 degrees, and with an appalling shriek from the engulfed mass she disappeared, and nearly 500 human beings were left struggling among the fierce waters. The scene was horrifying, and many who were saved afterward fainted at the mere memory of it.

A few held on to planks and spars all through the wild night, and as the day broke the Norwegian bark Ellen arrived and picked up 49 of the men.

"I was forced out of my course just before I met you," said the captain of the Ellen to the rescued passengers, "and when I altered my course a bird flew across the ship once or twice, and then darted into my face. A few minutes later the bird repeated its movements. I thought it an extraordinary thing, and while thinking on it in this way the mysterious bird reappeared, and for the third time flew into my face. This induced me to alter my course back to the original one, and in a short time I heard noises in the sea and discovered that I was in the midst of shipwrecked people."

Who shall say what power guided the flight of the frail messenger through the stormy air?—New York Herald.

Count D'Orazzy and Lady Holland.
A story going the rounds is one told of the famous Count D'Orazzy. On the occasion of his first visit to England, while he was very young, very handsome and not easily disconcerted, he chanced to be seated at dinner next to the brilliant and singular Lady Holland.

That remarkable and many-sided woman was in, as it happened, one of her imperious moods, and her young neighbor soon felt its weight. She dropped her napkin. The count picked it up gallantly. Then her fan, then her fork, then her glass, and as often her neighbor stooped and restored the lost article. At last, however, the patience of the young gave way, and on her dropping her napkin again he turned and called one of the footmen behind him. "Put my plate on the floor," said he. "I will finish my dinner there. It will be so much more convenient to my Lady Holland."—New York Times.

Growth of the Human Heart.
Dr. Benecke of Marburg has made known his observations on the growth of the human heart, the fact appearing that the increase is greatest and most rapid during the first and second years of life, its bulk at the end of the second year being exactly double what it originally was. Between the second and seventh years it is again doubled in size. A slower rate of growth then sets in and continues during the period of maturity of other portions of the body. After the fifteenth year up to the fiftieth the annual growth of the heart is about .061 of a cubic inch, the increase ceasing about the fiftieth year.—Leisure Moments.

I SHALL NOT DIE FOR THREE.

For three I shall not die.

Woman high of fame and name:

For three I shall not die.

Why should I expire

For the fire of an eye,

Slender waist or swanlike limb?

Is't for them that I should die?

The round breasts, the fresh skin,

Chaste crimson hair so long and rich:

Indeed, indeed, I shall not die.

Please God, not I for any such.

The golden hair, the forehead thin,

The chaste mien, the graceful ease

The rounded neck, the languid tone—

Toils alone and death from these.

Thy sharp wit, thy perfect calm,

Thy white neck, thy blue eyes,

I shall not die for these alone.

Woman, grace! I, the swan,

A wife man! I, the swan!

Little pain, white neck, bright eye,

I shall not die for ye.

An Old Family.

Several years ago there was an old family in Pennsylvania named Roth.

Indeed the long line of Roths was about all the family had to show by way of distinction, and so much did they make of the long branches of the family tree and the Niagara of blue blood that had in centuries past coursed through their veins that people of the more recent generations really began to think these Roths were of some account.

One evening there happened to be a party in the little town of M., and beside the great Roth family the guests numbered among others young Dr. Sharp.

He was a popular and rising physician and considered by matchmaking mummies a particularly desirable catch.

Mrs. Roth had four marriageable daughters, so at the first favorable opportunity she cornered the young doctor and sought to impress upon him the importance of her wonderful family.

"Why, doctor," she said, "we all came over on the Mayflower, so I know you will not think me bold in asserting that the Roths are really one of the first families."

"Pardon me," replied the young physician, "but I have no hesitation in saying that your family enjoys even a greater distinction."

"Oh, doctor," gushed the old woman, giving herself a congratulatory hug for coming triumph. "Indeed you doctor us."

"Not at all," he replied. "For I know you are the first family."

"(You told me that, dear doctor?)"

"The Bible," he replied reverently, "for it says the Lord was Roth."—Boston Budget.
